An interesting discussion arose on the subject of advertising, which was participated in by Mesers. Harris, Riterel, Grahan and Bliss. Several plans to fix a new standard of measurement for advertising space were proposed and discussed. On motion it was recommended to charge for advertising by the inch instead of by the quare, thus dropping the technical term. An amusing random discussion followed turing which several publishers related their "experience" in advertizing with undiable and irresponsible firms. To proect each other as much as possible from hese swindlers the following resolution was atroduced by Mr. Riterel, and adopted nanimously by the Convention: Resolved, That the members of this Ass Resolver, that the members of this Asso-ciation mutually agree not to advestise for any person or firm who refuse to pay any member thereof for advartising, until ar-rearages have been paid, of which the sufring party shall give due notice in h tyles for sale at Hogan's Jawelry and Fancy olumns. The subject of advertising agents was taken up and thoroughly considered. Remarks in reference to the system of agencies were made by Messrs. Fairbanks, Riterel, Bliss, Braggius, Palm and J. E. Rupert, when the arguments will be heard. The association was divided in opinion and no definite policy was agreed on. The following resolutions were adopted by

Mr. Perabo's were finer and generally more difficult of execution than those of the previous evening. They were rendered in the artist's best manner, and herence to his high standard in selections is always manifest. If he were less de voted to his art he would sometimes seek popular applause by the selection of compositions which appeal more directly to the average appreciation of his auditor.

Misses White and Perkins fagain divided the honors of the evening, each being heartily cacored at every appearance. Miss Perkins' success was far beyond that of the previous evening, and the audience seemed at a loss to find an adequate expres sion of their admiration for her perfer mance. Compound-int, Notes, 184,1075_68105 The circular from which we make an exract above reports the following interesting acts in connection with our shipments of specie and produce for the month of May and for the past six mouths. "The shipments of gold from New York to England during the month of May are not far short of thirty millions of dollars. The exports of produce, etc., to European markets during the same period exceed twenty millions of dollars in gold value, and the same period exceed twenty millions of dollars in gold value, making an aggregate of upwards of fifty millions of dollars, or say ten millions ater-ting remittances in one single month, chiefly, almost exclusively, to Great Britain. The exports, including specie, from the United States for the last six months show still more noteworthy that the whole amount of the exports from Great Britain to the United States, for 1805, only reached The local money market continues to work easier, notwithstanding a well-sustained demand for loans, and the banks generally report their situation as qui atisfactory. Eastern exchange, though still in quit r oderate receipt, is working easier, under a light demand, and the supply is relatively better than for some weeks past. Rates as unchanged. The report of the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund of the State of Ohio, made on the 4th inst, shows that there was redeeme of the Public Punded Debt of the State, during the six months from Nov. 15th, 1885, to May 15th, 1866, $400.817.44, leaving out standing at the latter date $12,511,197.01 The total amount of sinking fund on hand is $520,522 02. Of the general Produce markets we have only to repeat our previous observation of universal duliness. In Breadstuffs hardly nough doing to-day to make a market, but uch movements as there are, are made at about previous prices, and no decided change in this respect can be noted. There s a firm tone for the high grades of Flour and Wheat, but at the present range of prices there is no inducement to speculative investment, and buyers are satisfying themselves with supplying their legitimate wants only. Corn is quiet and steady. Oats are neglected. A fair demand is noted for Provisions, chiefly Smoked Meats, and prices continue without change and firm. tter is beginning to be a little more felt for, but the market is still very dull at about the previously reported range. Cheese is firm and in fair demand. " Eggs are steady. Highwines are quiet and steady. Petroleum
